

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY MARKS LINDBERGH SEARCH; COLONEL LEAVES HOME ON SECRET MISSION

DANUBIAN PARLEY WILL BE WIDENED TO WORLD AFFAIR

MacDonald and Tardieu
Decide To Discuss Reparations, Disarmament,
Debts and All Matters
Now Disturbing World.

FINANCIAL STORM SAID THREATENING

Conference Expected To Set Program To Be Followed by Europe in Dealing With U. S. on Debt.

BY FRANK H. KING.

LONDON, April 3.—(P)—Premier MacDonald, after a preliminary conversation with Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, tonight announced that the four-power conference on Wednesday will include the whole range of the European crisis, including disarmament, debts and reparations.

Originally the four-power conference among Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy, was proposed by Mr. MacDonald to tackle primarily the financial straits affecting the five Danubian states, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

Disarmament, Reparations.
After a preliminary conversation with Mr. Tardieu, however, the prime minister said that the Wednesday discussions will include the disarmament situation at Geneva, and the approaching Lausanne conference on reparations. This decision came after the two statesmen had talked together for an hour and a quarter.

Thus will a new avenue be opened up for dealing with Europe's relations to the United States, including what will happen when the Hoover moratorium comes to an end, as well as the future of war debt payments to the United States.

Mr. MacDonald indicated the conversations he had with Mr. Tardieu tonight were merely a preliminary move for a general settlement of European difficulties.

Tomorrow Mr. MacDonald will spend the whole day with the French premier, starting a task which he said "will be carried on at Lausanne and Geneva, and probably in other ways—a continuing work."

No Advance Understanding.
"The intention of the British government is sincere and disinterested," the prime minister said, "in getting the maximum amount of good will and international co-operation brought to bear on solution of the problems before us."

"One country can not do it. Two countries can not do it. The policy which we are working out is a policy of co-operation with everybody who is aiming at peace."

To allay a suspicion existing in some European countries regarding the meeting between the two premiers, they jointly declared:

"There are no agreements beforehand. There are no drafts of proposals beforehand. We want an agreement which will be consistent with the interests and well being of each nation concerned. Our policy is for practical steps to establish and maintain the peace and well being of Europe and the world."

The two premiers will start their conversations at 10 a. m. tomorrow, with the Danubian situation coming first in the survey.

Premier Tardieu and French Finance Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin and their party arrived at Victoria station about 4 p. m. in a drizzling rain.

Congressman Larsen Weds Miss Van Dyke

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Congressman W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, and Miss Margaret Van Dyke, of Jeffersonville, Ga., and Fairfax, Va., were married here this morning at the residence of the bride, Rev. S. B. Wingfield officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the late Nellie and Frank Van Dyke, of Fairfax county, Virginia. Upon the death of her parents Miss Van Dyke went to Macon, where for a number of years she resided with her aunt, Mrs. O. Y. Johnson, now of Miami. She is a graduate of Wesleyan College, class of 1931. Since graduation she has resided both in Georgia and Virginia, where she still retains interests.

Mr. Larsen's first wife, who died four years ago, was Miss Strange, of Swainsboro, Ga.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Washington, where they will remain until the adjournment of congress, when they will return to Georgia.

U. S. BUDGET FATE IN SENATE HANDS

Smaller Chamber Begins
Consideration of Vital
Revenue Bill Today.

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(P)—With the scene of the tax battle shifting this week to the senate, administration and congressional leaders are digging deeply into the question of wholesale governmental reorganization as a means of lopping off $300,000,000 in expenditures.

It is conceded by the house leadership and by Secretary Mills that about this sum in reduced appropriations is necessary to help the new revenue-raising bill just passed by the house to finance the 1933 budget.

The treasury head says complete government reorganization is the only way $200,000,000 can be taken from the appropriations for next year. Congressmen, however, are divided on whether such drastic steps are necessary.

The problem will come to a head this week in the senate, where the bill will be considered. The republicans will await the program to be submitted Wednesday by Mr. Tamm, before the opening of hearings on the tax measure.

Parties Agreed.
Both republican and democratic leaders will insist upon a balanced budget for next year. A bipartisan coalition similar to that which put it through the house is lining up behind the general provisions of the tax bill as it comes to the senate.

But whether to find the added $200,000,000 by new taxes, by indiscriminate slashing of the appropriations, or by general governmental reorganization is the problem. The senate independents are considering a drive to boost the higher taxes. The house bill provides a maximum rate of 40 per cent on income over $100,000. A maximum rate of 45 or 50 per cent is being discussed.

Tomorrow the senate appropriations committee will meet in an attempt to

Atlanta Man Killed By Accidental Shot

Shot accidentally while cleaning a pistol at his home at noon Sunday, George G. Shepard, 58, of 1013 Highland View, N. E., died early Sunday night at Grady hospital.

Mr. Shepard was cleaning the gun as a protection against prowlers who had been seen in the neighborhood lately, when it was accidentally fired, it was said. The bullet pierced his abdomen. Physicians appealed for a donor with suitable blood for a transfusion, but were unable to locate the required type of blood in time to give the transfusion. Several persons were tested.

Though critically wounded, Mr. Shepard was able to attract the attention of a neighbor after the shot, and an ambulance was called to carry him to the hospital. Mrs. Shepard was at church at the time and his small daughter was out playing, it was said.

Mr. Shepard had been employed as a clerk by the Southeastern passenger Association for the last 20 years. Funeral arrangements were not complete Sunday night.

Jimmie Wedell Saves Life in Jump As Wing Breaks at 320-Mile Speed

PATTERSON, La., April 3.—(P)—All tests except the speed test had been made before representatives of the oil company and Harry Williams, of the Wedell-Williams Company, when Jimmie Wedell took the plane through the speed test.

Officials asked him to fly low in order to clock the speed accurately. Wedell was making 320 miles an hour at an altitude of only 100 feet when the left wing began to crumble. He shot the nose of the plane upward and succeeded in reaching a height of 500 feet before the wing collapsed. Wedell jumped. The plane crashed.

"It was the most remarkable escape from death I have ever seen," said Harry Williams.

CONGRESSMAN W. W. LARSEN.

ACCIDENTS FATAL TO 22 IN SOUTH

Kentucky Leads With Four Deaths in Week-End Wrecks.

By the Associated Press.

Twenty-two persons died in accidents in the south over the week-end. Reports Sunday disclosed the theater of fatalities moved from the seaboard where it was concentrated last week to the inland states, most of the deaths occurring in the Mississippi basin.

Kentucky led with four deaths. Mississippi, Virginia, Georgia and Florida had three each; Louisiana two, and Arkansas two, and Alabama and Tennessee one each.

Sixteen of the deaths were caused by automobile, two persons in that class drowning after their cars overturned into streams; two were killed in an airplane accident, two burned to death, one died under a train and another was shot accidentally.

An automobile left a curve at Harrodsburg, Ky., killing Charles Kinkead, 60; Mrs. Kinkead, 55, and Miss Sallie Brookings, 35, of Lexington.

Two three-year-old boys, the sons of John C. Caldwell and W. E. Tate at Tupelo, Miss., burned to death when they set fire to their pony barn and clubhouse.

Jerome Seruntine Jr., 36, and Mrs. Agnes McCloskey died when their automobile turned over at Meraville, Louisiana.

Hardy Buck was unloading a gun after a turkey hunt at Malvern, Ark., when it was discharged, killing his companion, Gus Harris.

Jefferson D. McKay, Macon, Ga., salesman, drowned after his automobile left the highway and plunged into a river.

Mrs. Louis Young, 70, of Carlisle, Ark., was struck and killed by an automobile.

Mrs. Leroy Pratt Percy drowned as her automobile plunged into Bayou Black at Greenville, Miss.

John Couch, 75, attempted to step from a moving car at Attalla, Ala., and was killed.

A train killed Wilson Robinson, 36, near Pikeville, Ky.

William Fowler, 24, and Robert Brannigan, 17, were killed when their plane crashed at Gainesville, Florida.

M. Callaway, of Valdosta, Ga., was killed in an automobile accident at Lakeland, Fla.

H. C. Hopkins, 53, of Richmond, Va., was killed in an automobile collision at Windsor Shores, Va.

L. F. Tyree, 55, of Norfolk, was found dead on a highway near that city. Police believed he had been struck by a hit-and-run driver, although they expressed the opinion he might have been slugged.

Mrs. J. D. Bennett, 23, of Jackson, Tenn., was killed when an automobile overturned near Nashville.

Miss Lucile Busby, of Atlanta, died in a similar accident near Cassville, Ga.

An 18-year-old boy was killed when a truck overturned at Bluefield, Va. A four-year-old negro boy was killed on a country road near Macon, Ga., late today. He was struck by an automobile.

HEAD OF FAMILY IN RANCH KILLINGS IS UNDER ARREST

Three Others Are Jailed
While Police Check
Ranch Deal in Massacre of 7 in New Mexico.

EL PASO, Texas, April 3.—(P)—Officers investigating the massacre of seven members of the family of Malquadio Espinosa, at Berino, N. M., tonight arrested Espinosa and three other persons after announcing they were checking details of a Mexican ranch deal.

Sheriff Dici Travis, of Dona Ana county, said he had uncovered clues which he believed might lead to arrest of the men who shot the family to death in their home Friday night after allegedly demanding money.

He said he would ask the co-operation of Mexican authorities in investigating a ranch deal in which Espinosa and three men who live a few miles south of Juarez, opposite El Paso, in Mexico, were said to be involved.

Travis questioned Espinosa and the two women were questioned by officers at Las Cruces last night and were said to have been released this morning. Later Sheriff Travis admitted the trio had been held all day.

The unidentified man's arrest was the result of an outburst of emotion by Espinosa at the funeral of his wife and six children yesterday, the sheriff said. Seeing the man at the single grave in which all were buried, Espinosa was quoted as declaring he was responsible for "the whole trouble."

The suspect told Travis he knew of no reason for Espinosa's accusation. Espinosa himself said he must have been irrational if he made the charges.

The theory that the killers might have been from Mexico as a result of the ranch deal was investigated after officers had talked to Mrs. Lohana Espinosa, widow of Louis Espinosa, one of those killed.

Mrs. Espinosa said Malquadio Espinosa made frequent trips to Juarez in connection with the ranch deal and that three men in an automobile had visited the Espinosa home several times in the last two weeks.

Investigators learned the men were attempting to sell Espinosa a ranch south of Juarez and negotiations had been virtually completed on condition that Luis Espinosa would operate the property. This Luis refused to do because he did not wish to return to Mexico.

Mrs. Espinosa said Espinosa, though he seldom drank intoxicating liquor, always imagined himself fabulously rich and did drink. She expressed opinion he might have made some statement about imaginary funds concealed in his home which he was desirous to attempt to rob him.

Sheriff Travis did not intimate how long he intended to hold the quartet in jail.

Neighbors and friends of the family were deeply shocked by the incident and meeting at the funeral of the victims yesterday made plans for the formation of a citizens' vigilance committee.

ATLANTA GIRL, 19, KILLED IN CRASH

Miss Lucile Busby, 19 years old, of 204 West Slom Avenue, College Park, was killed Sunday afternoon near Cassville when an automobile in which she was riding hurtled from the highway and overturned.

Miss Ola Cooper, also of College Park, who was driving the car, sustained a fractured leg. She is in a hospital at Cartersville. Roy Busby, of College Park, who also was a passenger in the car, and uncle of the dead girl, escaped with minor injuries.

The accident occurred on the Dixie highway just outside of Cassville and about nine miles north of Cartersville. Occupants of another car brought Busby and Miss Cooper to the hospital here, where the former was dismissed after treatment. Miss Busby was dead when her uncle extricated herself from the overturned car and attempted to aid her.

Miss Busby was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Grady Busby.

DEMOCRATS OPEN FUND CAMPAIGN

100,000 Supporters Will
Be Called on for $1,500-
000 "Victory" Sum.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(UP)—Democrats announced tonight a whirlwind campaign to complete their $1,500,000 "Victory fund."

One hundred thousand democrats in all parts of the country will receive from the postman this week personal letters of solicitation in the form of telegrams, "Victory-grams" they are called, signed by nine presidential possibilities.

These 100,000 all contributors to the 1928 campaign fund, will be asked to send in their checks before April 13, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the party. Leaders hope to announce success of their drive at a big rally here on that day.

"We must make certain of victory," the Victory-gram says. "To balance the party's books, we finance international."

Antidote for Gases Reported Discovered

LONDON, April 3.—(UP)—A remarkable scientific discovery which may have a profound effect on modern chemical warfare was reported today by the Sunday Express, which also indicated that the discoverer of the secret may have died a martyr to his work.

The newspaper said the chemical defense research department of the war office had discovered an effective antidote for all gases used in modern warfare. The department had been experimenting for 14 years in an effort to achieve such a formula.

Military volunteers risked their lives by walking in areas filled with deadly gases, the newspaper said. They were affected by the gases, but recovered immediately from the effects when the antidote was applied.

Major W. E. Galloway, who died March 6, was the chief expert conducting the experiment. The Express said he died without realizing the success which had been achieved, and they were affected by the gases, but recovered immediately from the effects when the antidote was applied.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 3.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, driving over an unfrequented back road, returned to his country home near midnight tonight after making a mysterious automobile trip on which he departed last night.

It was the first time he had been absent from the estate since his son was kidnapped March 1.

As the colonel approached over the Stoughton road, a country road which joins the main road leading to the Lindbergh estate, he met a party of reporters.

In the darkness the colonel stopped one of the newspapermen and said: "Who are you? The police?" "No," the reporter said, "we're the press. Is there anything new?" "Thank you," responded the colonel as he drove away.

The colonel, who was driving, was accompanied by an unidentified man. From the fleeting glimpse of the passenger some believed him to be Colonel Henry Breckinridge, the colonel's intimate friend and attorney. Others thought the man was John J. Fogarty, former crack New York city detective, who has been at the estate frequently since the kidnapping.

The colonel was driving a five-passenger car with a convertible top. It was his personal machine.

He wore a black cap with a buttoned visor and leather gloves. The colonel drove directly to the house without stopping at the last police sentinel.

Earlier it had been learned from a reliable source that Mrs. Lindbergh also was absent from the house, but upon the colonel's return it was presumed she had returned.

PARTY VANGUARD TO ARRIVE TODAY

Democrats Will Reach
City in Force Wednesday for Convention.

The vanguard of the Georgia division of the democratic army will invade Atlanta today, the shock troops of the guns which are to roar Wednesday when the party will meet in state convention to select the 28 delegates and a like number of alternates to the forthcoming national convention of the party.

As a matter of fact the scouts arrived Sunday night and were reconnoitering about hotel lobbies, whispering here, buzzing there and button-holing somewhere else.

Inasmuch as the democratic party held a preferential primary this year and every county voted overwhelmingly for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, the state's delegation will go instructed for the Empire state executive, thereby eliminating any possibility of strife. Everything is set for the unit rule to prevail.

The convention itself will be held at the city auditorium while the 12 district caucuses will be at the Ansley hotel, and it is there that it is expected the only battles of the session will be fought. The convention will open at 11 o'clock with Chairman Lawrence Camp, of the executive committee, presiding as temporary chairman. The permanent officers then will be chosen and the "big eight," four delegates and four alternates.

Bakers' Unsold Bread To Aid Nation's Needy

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—

Weekly contributions of five to ten million pounds of unsold bread for the nation's needy were proposed today to the national Red Cross by Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers Association. Chairman John Barton Payne has notified Red Cross chapters that Stude also offered the services of 90 per cent of the bakers in the United States for baking bread, without profit, from government wheat now being distributed by the Red Cross.

After ratification of the delegates and alternates at large the convention will recess until 2 o'clock and during the interim the district caucuses will be held at the Ansley. On reconvening the states approved by the various caucuses will be ratified, the resolutions and platform committees heard from and the day ended.

FINAL RITES TODAY

FOR LEON L. DODD

The funeral of Leon L. Dodd, 40, of 649 Lexington avenue, who died Saturday night in a private hospital, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son. Dr. H. H. Jones and Dr. B. D. Gray will officiate. The body will be taken to Stockbridge for burial.

Mr. Dodd, who was the son of Dr. A. T. Dodd, widely known physician, was a veteran of the World War. He was retired from business and had been in ill health for some time. Surviving are his wife, his parents, two small daughters, Miriam and Martha Dodd, and five brothers and three sisters.

Grace Moore and Tibbett Booked For 1932-33 Concert Series Here

Outstanding artists of the world again are on the program arranged for next season by the All-Star Concert series, according to announcement Saturday by Marvin McDonald. Though the number of recitals will be reduced to five, seven artists will be heard. The cost of season tickets will be reduced in proportion to the reduction in the number of recitals. Lily Pons, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who has created such a favorable impression whenever she has been heard, will be an outstanding feature and will open the series in October.

Jascha Heifetz, one of the great instrumentalists of the generation, will be the only violinist. George Barrere and his little symphony orchestra will be heard in joint recital, with Jose Iturbi, the brilliant young Spanish pianist. Mr. Iturbi will play a Mozart concert with the orchestra, in addition to a group of piano solos.

Lawrence Tibbett, most famous of American singers, will fill a return engagement next season. No artist that has appeared in Atlanta in years attracted such a large and enthusiastic audience as Tibbett, and it will be welcome news to the music lovers of Georgia that he is coming back so soon.

Grace Moore, who has been singing the leading lyric soprano roles of the Metropolitan Opera Company for the past six seasons, and who has been featured in motion pictures with Tibbett, will be heard in joint recital with Richard Crooks, eminent tenor. Several popular duets will be a feature of this program.

Mr. McDonald especially calls attention to the patrons of the All-Star Concert series that the season brought to a close recently was presented as originally announced, every contract being complied with without as much as a change of date.

Subscriptions are now being accepted and can be made by communicating with Marvin McDonald at his home, 1872 North Rock Springs road, N. E.

MRS. D. A. BAGLEY, 36, PHYSICIAN'S WIFE, DIES

Mrs. D. A. Bagley, of 1724 Bankhead highway, N. W., wife of Dr. D. A. Bagley, well-known Grove Park physician, died Sunday morning at a private hospital, after an illness of a week. She was 36 years old.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in Americanus, where Dr. and Mrs. Bagley formerly resided. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Harry G. Poole & Company.

Mrs. Bagley was a native of East St. Louis, Ill., where she received her education. She had resided here for the last six years, and was a member of Mayor James L. Key's Bible class.

Besides her husband she is survived by two small daughters, Bessie and Josephine Bagley; a son, D. A. Bagley Jr.; her mother, Mrs. H. A. Chadsey, of Brooksville, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. C. W. Barnette, of New Port Richey, Fla.

Negro Youth Slain.

Fifteen-year-old Annie Lewis, negro, of 177 Rondeau's alley, was stabbed to death in an altercation early Sunday night with another negro woman on Butler street, near Eliza, according to police reports. Lillie Mae Foster, negro, of 314 Old Wheat street, was arrested by police on a charge of suspicion.

Church Officers.

WAYCROSS, Ga., April 3.—The Parkside Presbyterian church has elected officers for the ensuing year, as follows: K. N. Porter, clerk of session; C. H. Campbell, chairman of the board of deacons; J. L. Bernard, treasurer; B. F. Hearn, superintendent of Sunday school; Miss Lillian Stewart, pianist; B. F. Hearn, choir director.

PRESS BODY TO MEET AT LAKELAND FRIDAY

Interesting Program Arranged for 8th District Newspaper Association.

WAYCROSS, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—The Eighth District Press Association representing 20 counties of southeast Georgia, will hold their annual spring convention at Lakeland, Lanier county, next Friday, when Lon Burton, editor of the Lanier County News, as host.

The meeting will open at 10:30 being called to order by Folks Huxford, editor of the Clinch County News at Homerville, president of the association. The Rev. A. L. Green, pastor of the Lakeland Methodist church, will deliver the invocation, and the address of welcome will be by L. L. Patterson, representative from Lanier county. The response will be from Jack Williams, editor of the Waycross Journal-Herald and president of the Georgia Press Association.

Following a musical program by the Nashville band, a series of addresses will be delivered as follows: "Hog Chitterlings and Cornbread," by W. Wrench, editor of the Charlton County Herald, Folkston; "The Ladies, I Love 'em," by Kirk Suttie, editor of the Blackshear Times; "How I Manage My Wife," by Bradwell Dean, editor of the Alma Times; "The Fun of Being a Country Editor," by F. C. Helfenstein, editor of the Live Oak (Fla.) Democrat; "What I Think of Country Editors," by DeWitt Roberts, editor of the Valdosta Times; "Bull," by Dr. A. D. Williams, "Bull," by W. R. Smith, of the Alpha Alpha circuit, of Nashville; "Route 11," by C. A. Hardee, former governor of Georgia; "Georgia Cracker," by W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph.

At 1 o'clock an old-fashioned fish fry will be staged, with E. D. Rivers, mayor of Lakeland and a former member of the Georgia senate, as master of ceremonies. At 2:30 an afternoon session will be launched, a round table discussion on newspaper problems to be conducted by W. T. Shytle, editor of the Adel News.

Motorist Strikes Son, Another Child Same Day

JACKSON, Tenn., April 3.—(AP)—H. C. Parkins Saturday struck two children with his automobile in separate accidents. One of them was his own two-year-old son.

Betty Hanslee, 6, was knocked down at a street intersection. She was in a serious condition at a hospital from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Two witnesses testified the accident was unavoidable, but Parkins was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

As Parkins returned home several hours later, his little boy ran in front of the car. The child's head was badly cut. His condition was not considered serious.

MIDNIGHT PARTY ENDS WITH FATAL QUARREL

Farmer Shot Dead, Alleged Assassin Held in Hawkinsville Jail.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—A midnight party at the home of John J. Wood, farmer of Pulaski county, ended with the killing of James Johnson, 22, and the arrest of George Grinstead, 40, also wounded, charged with the slaying. Grinstead claims, however, that he killed Johnson in self-defense after the latter had attacked him with a knife.

Johnson was shot twice and fell dead. After the killing Sheriff Jim Hill was notified. He found the body of Johnson and found Grinstead bleeding from serious knife wounds in the head. He took Grinstead to a physician to have the wounds closed and then placed him in jail here.

Johnson was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Steed Johnson, residing about two miles from this city. His body was taken to Dooley county today, where the funeral was held.

VALDOSTA IS KILLED AS AUTO STRIKES POST

LAKELAND, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—J. M. Callaway, 29, of Valdosta, Ga., was killed here this morning when an automobile struck a telephone post. D. D. Donovan, of Cossack, N. Y., was injured seriously and is in a hospital.

Murray Savage, of Lakeland, driver of the car, said Callaway was riding on the running board, and, apparently losing his balance, grabbed the steering wheel, causing the car to lurch to the side of the street and strike the post. Savage was not injured. Donovan, riding in the rumble seat, was thrown out of the car by the impact.

A coroner's jury said the accident was unavoidable.

MACON MAYOR SEEKS NAVY DIRIGIBLE BASE

MACON, Ga., April 3.—(UP)—Mayor G. Glen Toole plans to fly to Washington April 12 to ask government officials to establish a base here with a hangar and a new type mooring mast to house the dirigible Macon, the latest of the navy's airships being built.

"There's no reason why Macon shouldn't be the southeastern base for navy dirigibles," said Mayor Toole.

CANDLER RUN-OUT SET FOR WEDNESDAY

MEETER, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—Candler county's run-out primary will be held here next Wednesday to decide who will serve the county for sheriff for the next four years. In the election held on March 23, those in the race for sheriff were the present Sheriff M. E. Trappnell, former Deputy Sheriff Ben H. Ellis and Claude Williams. Trappnell failed by 88 to poll a sufficient vote to be elected in the primary, making it necessary for Trappnell and Ellis to enter the run-out.

Auto Falls in Creek, MAcon Man Drowns

MACON, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—Jefferson D. McKay, 65-year-old traveling salesman, of Macon, died in the muddy water of the southernmost of the Seven Bridges creeks, south of here, Sunday afternoon after his small coupe rolled between a telephone pole and the Macon end of the bridge abutment and plunged into the deep stream.

The body was recovered from the automobile, which was completely submerged, after an hour and 10 minutes, and efforts of physicians to revive the drowned man with pulmotors were futile.

Rescuers had to dive three or four times before the car could be located. An inquest will be held at 11 o'clock Monday morning, although drowning was said to be the immediate cause of Mr. McKay's death, it was apparent that he had received a severe blow on the top of the head and several gashes about the arms and head when his car plunged from the road.

16 CARRIER OWNERS LOSE STATE LICENSES

Sixteen trucks or bus operators have had their certificates revoked and cancelled by the state public service commission.

Commissioner James A. Perry, in announcing action taken on recent citations against certain operators for violations of the commission's rules and regulations said Saturday that the commission had also suspended operations on three lines and dismissed cases against nine other carriers.

"Operators who no longer have state certificates of operation are:

Mrs. Mary E. Kimbrough, Leesburg; S. W. Risher, Carverville; J. L. Smith, doing business as the Athens Best-Air Company, Athens; O. E. Hiltchcock, Abbeville; Zelanda Gillespie, Cantonville; Plains; J. H. Levens, Carrollton; Oscar Terry, Summerville; King Truck Lines, Lawrenceville; Hawkins Brothers, Canton; Joe Bell Transfer, Canton; Martin Transfer Company, Marietta; Viltner Transfer and Storage Company.

Citations against the following nine operators to show cause why their certificates should not be revoked were dismissed: Ardee Motor Freight Line, Monticomey, Ala.; Richmond Transfer Company, Rutledge; Buckhead Taxicab Company, Atlanta; John C. Foster, Fort Gaines; Arthur Jennings, Superior; South Georgia Transfer Company, Macon; Georgia Highway Express, Ikon; Atlanta; C. B. Starr, Rockmart; and C. H. Roates Transfer, Cedar-town.

The certificates suspended were those of: Cecil Whitaker, Abbeville; Frank D. Longshore, Covington; H. T. Digler, Covington; and Cornelius Hall, Fort Valley.

The commission approved seven applications for certificates of operation and denied a like number.

Authority to revise their schedules was granted the Florida Motor Lines, Inc. were granted the right to cancel their passenger schedules No. 8 and 2, respectively, between Atlanta and Columbus, S. C., and between Savannah and Jacksonville, Fla.

The Inter-Carrollina Motor Bus Company and the Florida Motor Lines, Inc. were granted the right to cancel their passenger schedules No. 8 and 2, respectively, between Atlanta and Columbus, S. C., and between Savannah and Jacksonville, Fla.

The commission approved the application of the Federated Trucking Company, Savannah, for approval of its commodity rate on iron drums from Brunswick to Savannah for completion of present contract only and denied the same concern a certificate to operate as a private carrier.

CLEVELAND LEADER PASSES AT AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—(AP)—Frances E. Drury, 81, Cleveland philanthropist and civic leader, died here today.

Mrs. Drury was president of the perfection Stove Company of Cleveland for 25 years and a director of the Guardian bank. He was connected with a number of civic enterprises and a director of several settlement house organizations. He was a trustee of the Case school and was interested in the Cleveland Little Theater League.

He twice sponsored visits of the Metropolitan Opera Company to Cleveland and extended financial aid to a number of young musicians for study in Europe. Mr. Drury had visited Augusta for several winters and had sponsored musical concerts here. He helped many Cleveland and Augusta institutions financially.

The body will be sent to Cleveland tomorrow and funeral services will be held at the church of the Covenant there Wednesday. Interment will be in the Lake View cemetery at Cleveland.

MORE VANISHING AMERICANS?

Thirteen republican members of the national senate came up for re-election this year. What are the chances for democratic gains and what are the chances for a shift from the august body's dry stand?

Chief among those who are to face the will of their electorate this year are George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, and James E. Watson, of Indiana. Moses, the president pro tem of the senate because his democratic and independent republican foes could not agree on another candidate, may find it difficult to make the grade this presidential year despite the normal republican majority in his state, and Senator Watson will have the fight of his life. Just now Indiana democrats are building up their fences and agreeing on a candidate. The safer side of any wager is that Sunny Jim will be re-elected next March 4.

Next in import, if a republican can be considered of import in these democratic days, is Wesley L. Jones, a patron saint of the Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U., whose Washington constituents will pass on him and his "five-and-ten" law this year. Senator Jones still stands high with the dries, but the dries have fallen from grace in the north-west country.

The veterans, Samuel L. Shortridge and Frederick Stewier, of Jones' neighboring states of California and Oregon, also must account for themselves this fall. Their chances, though brighter than those of Jones, are not as rosy as they would have them be. The California G. O. P. may beat Shortridge in the primary.

There is some chance, but not odds-on chances, that Tasker L. Oddie, of Nevada, and John Thomas, of Idaho, and Otis Glenn, of Illinois, have outlived their usefulness to the homefolks, but the democrats are mindful of the local situations in each of these states and are not holding out very high hopes of capturing them, though one never can tell what will happen when an aroused electorate decides to call for a new deal.

The other seven G. O. P. candidates who must hurry home when the present session ends to do their campaigning are John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin; Porter Dale, of Vermont; Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota; Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota; Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut; Jimmy Davis, of Pennsylvania; and Reed Smoot, of Utah. The democrats doubtless will put up sturdy battles in each of these states, but it will be difficult to unseat any of these worthies, though Bingham's position is stronger than any of them because of his witness, and that is what Connecticut wants. And former Secretary Davis, despite his strength, would be spending sleepless nights if he hadn't turned wet not so long ago—for Pennsylvania is of that line of thought.

Probably the happiest of the G. O. P. lot at this time is none other than Dr. Simeon D. Fess, the republican chairman. Dr. Fess' homefolks in Ohio are mighty riled against him personally. They are riled against the republican party, and they're riled against the prohibition law, which Dr. Fess thinks is sacred. But the lucky doctor doesn't come up for re-election until 1935, for which he thanks God!

HEALTH NURSES TO MEET.

When the National Organization for Public Health Nursing was formed 20 years ago there were less than 3,000 nurses engaged in public health work. Now they have grown to 20,000.

At the convention which will be held by the association in San Antonio April 11 to 15 the partnerships between laymen and nurses in the fight for betterment of public health will be stressed, through special meetings arranged for laymen who will attend from all parts of the country.

These laymen are for the most part members of local health boards and committees and the discussions to which they and the nurses will listen should result in a wider understanding of the problems faced both in city and rural service.

The various public health services of the country have played a vitally important part in the improved health of the country and they should receive the earnest cooperation of every citizen. To that end the San Antonio discussions will well serve a splendid purpose.

BRITAIN COMES THROUGH.

Faced six months ago with one of the most serious financial crises in its history, the British government ended its fiscal year on March 31 with a surplus in its treasury of approximately $250,000,000.

By contributing in three months' time almost a billion dollars in taxes, the Britons removed their government from a position bordering on national bankruptcy to a place where it became one of the few in the world to pay its way during the 12 months ending April 1.

It was no easy accomplishment. Record-breaking taxes were levied, including an income tax of 25 per cent and surtaxes on incomes of more than $10,000 that stripped the well-to-do and wealthy of by far the larger part of their incomes.

The whole nation went on a starvation basis so far as comforts and luxuries were concerned. Country homes and shooting lodges of wealthy city dwellers were closed; heirlooms were put on sale and gold plate was melted up so that the metal could be used in the payment of taxes.

The British went at the job with their usual bulldog tenacity—and practically cleaned it up in three months. Now, although scarcely out of this nightmare period of taxation, they are in cheerful mood, feeling, according to one report, "that they are moving toward better times."

"Give us another six months and you will see," is the Britisher's slogan this spring, another report says in commenting on the growth of optimism throughout the country.

If the people of America will follow the example of their mother country and keep their heads up and their spirits cheerful and confident, the heavy tax burden that they, too, now have to shoulder, will be easier to carry.

More than that, the clouds of depression will soon roll away before the economic sunshine of optimism and faith and increased profits will make the larger taxes less of a drain upon individual resources.

SLASHED OCEAN RATES.

The decision of the great transatlantic lines to slash passenger fares from 15 to 50 per cent puts foreign tourists within the reach of many to whom they have heretofore been prohibited because of cost.

The new rates will make it possible for tourists to make the round trip from New York to various European ports for as low as $150. The rates apply to the finest liners of all the companies and the service will be the same as that received when the cost of the transportation was twice as large.

Where formerly a month or six weeks spent on the continent would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500 for even moderate accommodations and limited excursions, the same trip can now be taken for little more than $500 or $600.

Thus is offered to thousands of Americans the broadening experience which comes from the observation of other countries and other peoples. There is no more provincial people in the world than those of the United States, largely because we know so little, through actual contact, of the ambitions and ideals of those living in other parts of the world.

Since the Great War, world relations have become increasingly closer and our people have been handicapped in this new relationship by their lack of first-hand international knowledge. If the new ocean rates have the effect of stimulating our visits abroad, they will, therefore, have served a worthwhile purpose not only to the steamship companies but to our people, both from a pleasurable and an educational standpoint.

The farm board seems to have a lot of knotty problems.

The great trouble with the rank and file is that so few are file.

A court recently ruled that a son-in-law is not a member of the family. This is anything but news to a son-in-law.

We don't suppose there's any inoculation which may be given for spring fever, and if there was we wouldn't take it.

Too many people are waiting for the rest of the world to go by.

A recent news dispatch tells of a farmer who went crazy laughing. Well, a farmer would have to be crazy to laugh these days.

Most high-strung people should be.

Clemenceau's Last "Mot."

A report has appeared, promptly contradicted by members of the family, that Georges Clemenceau in the last days of his life felt the need of making peace with the church.

Had this been so the "Tiger" would have denied his whole philosophy of life and destroyed the convictions he set down while death was already upon him in his last book, "In the Event of Thought."

Clemenceau died without hope or belief in immortality. It is not a question of wishing that it could have been otherwise. Facts are facts. His son, who since died also, told me just a few months ago that his father in his last days played one of his characteristic pranks on one of the religious sisters who looked after him in his illness.

"Sister," said the "Tiger," as he awakened from a short slumber, "I had a most curious dream. I dreamed I was dead and had arrived at the gate of heaven. Someone came out. I think it was St. Peter, and he asked me whether I had made peace with the church before my death. I told him that I was very good friends with you, Sister Ursula, and also with Father Jerome, who does me the honor of visiting me here frequently. These words of mine seemed to please St. Peter immensely. 'Did you not say that I should go into heaven, I begged the saint to call a priest, so that I might confess. St. Peter accepted my suggestion. He went inside the church and asked me to wait. St. Peter was away a long time. Finally, he reappeared, very much discontented and alone. He has not been able to find a single clergyman in heaven, dear Sister Ursula, not one,' chuckled the 'Tiger.'"

"I had to admit," went on the "Tiger," "that I had not. But since I expressed a willingness to go, so, at least, if it should get me into heaven, I begged the saint to call a priest, so that I might confess. St. Peter accepted my suggestion. He went inside the church and asked me to wait. St. Peter was away a long time. Finally, he reappeared, very much discontented and alone. He has not been able to find a single clergyman in heaven, dear Sister Ursula, not one," chuckled the "Tiger."

Criticisms.

The mania to deny every man or woman who sets out to criticize American life or any of its phases, as widely practiced by well-meaning patriotic organizations, has done us little harm. Instead of allowing us to see the other side of the prosperity myth and the other side of the non-likable blatherings, the mass of the people were allowed to drift on blindfolded without any guidance but the ballroom on the part of economic experts who shouted that the millennium had dawned and would never end.

What we need in this country is self-criticism and respect for the critics. Self-criticism is an act of faith and an act of strength. Only a strong, only those conscious of a high destiny, dare to indulge in it. The others dare not look reality in the face. They cover it up with stereotyped sets of phrases and drown out, with stentorian lung-power, all those who venture to question.

We need to turn inward and examine ourselves and our ways of life. And if we find them to be wrong—something must be wrong with us, everybody will agree by now—we must be able to tear it out and banish it away, even if it costs pain or if it should upset some notions we inherited from our ancestors.

Greater Rumania.

Rumors have it that Marshal Pilsudski visits to the Rumanian capital, Bucharest, to make Crown Prince Michael, of Rumania, joint heir of the Polish and Rumanian thrones.

It is the first intimation the public has, I imagine, that there is such a thing as a monarchist movement in Poland. Still, it exists. The junkies and military classes of Poland never relinquished the idea of a republic, whether they will pick young Michael to be their king is another question.

And whether certain European states—Russia and Germany and Hungary, for instance—are going to permit the creation of a state, for this is what it would mean, of nearly 50,000,000 people, is very much to find.

An officer of high professional attainments, he rendered particularly valuable service in the organization of the ordnance department of the American expeditionary forces, and exhibited unusual ability in arranging for the procurement of ordnance material and ammunition for the American army in Europe. Residence at appointment, Nacoochee, Georgia.

BONERS

Boners are actual humorous tidbits found in examination papers, essays, etc., by teachers.

A papyrus is a Greek baby.

Richard three eyes was crowned king. He had courage and energy in spite of his deformity, but it didn't get him anywhere in the end.

King John proved to be a remorseless indignant king.

The Romans met Hadrubal at the bank of a river and completely destroyed him for ever.

The New King Does Himself Little Honor If He Is Jealous of the One Dethroned

By Robert Quillen

There is an ancient fable concerning two friends who quarreled about a cloak. Each seized a corner of the garment and sought with might and main to wrest it from the other, and thus between them they destroyed the thing and neither had any reward for his struggle except the poor satisfaction of keeping from his friend the thing he could not obtain for himself.

The fable of the cloak is the fable of every unfortunate man—usually an only son—who is the bone of contention between a selfish wife and a jealous mother, or a selfish mother and a jealous wife.

Any manly man abominates "scenes." He hates being made conspicuous. He is ashamed and embarrassed when the women of his household exhibit temper. And he suffers torments when two of them battle for the chief place in his affections.

The vanity of ladies may be tickled when competitors fight for their favor, but the role of prize is feminine. No man can enjoy it. The realization that mother and wife are engaged in a secret and bitter conflict for the right to possess and dominate him robs any man's life of peace and pleasure.

If he loves both, as in such cases he always does, he must see blind and deaf to preserve his neutrality. His love impels him to support and defend both, yet forbids him to hurt or forsake either. He is helpless, and his very helplessness doubles his shame.

He would please both, yet if he pleases one he displeases the other. And both of them, though inspired by love of him, conspire to make him the most miserable of men.

There is no room in jealousy for any motive except selfishness. Neither woman gives a thought to the man's welfare, except as it may be achieved by her direction. The sole desire of each is to get more of his money or more of his attention or more of his love and to establish her right to direct and dominate him.

The wife is more at fault than the mother. Her jealousy, if she is well loved, is without cause. She loses nothing by reason of the man's love for his mother.

The mother's jealousy is instinctive. It is mother love fighting against the inevitable separation—clinging to that first place in the man's heart she has so nobly earned.

The younger woman must endure the same experience when her time comes. Knowledge of the fact should make her gentle and patient with the woman she has supplanted.

American Sponsors Radio Forum To Promote World Understanding

PARIS, April 3.—(AP)—The organization of an international radio forum, a non-political non-commercial organization to promote understanding between people of the old and new worlds, was announced today.

Sponsored by Ira Nelson Morris, of the American minister to Sweden, the American committee will be divided into two committees with emigrant persons serving as members.

The forum will be held in the United States and Europe confined to educational information will be arranged.

It is frequently to "stimulate intelligent public thinking on a wide range of subjects" that the committee of both the American and French committees will begin a regular series of international broadcasts programs at an early date, yet to be selected.

To assure coast-to-coast dissemination in the United States of the speeches of prominent Europeans, Mr. Morris announced that the committee of the forum have arranged with the National Broadcasting Company to assume transmission on this side.

Only Four Parishioners Present As Accused Rector Defends Self

STIFFKEY, England, April 3.—(AP)—The Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, 60-year-old rector of Stiffkey, defended himself from the pulpit today against charges of immorality and sexual relations with a woman, one of the four parishioners who were present at the service.

"We cannot have purity without the possibility of sin," the minister declared in a trembling voice as he stood in the pulpit facing a congregation of 47 persons.

Only four parishioners attended the service and the minister was surrounded by seekers and reporters who were attracted to the rector by his sensational trial last week in consistency with the rules of the church. The trial will be continued this week.

Although he did not mention the charges, Dr. Davidson indirectly defended himself and declared that all people, "regardless of whether they are a queen or a little dishwaterer, can equally form a high character, as long as they do their respective jobs."

Dr. Davidson was accused by several waitresses in London restaurants of "pestering and annoying" them at various times in the last few years. The text of the sermon was from the First Corinthians, Chapter 15.

"Now I make known unto you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also was received by you, in which you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast after what manner I preached unto you, unless you have believed in vain. No one received it: How that Christ died for our sins, according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he is risen again the third day."

"But we must not encourage it," Dr. Davidson asked for the prayers of those concerned in the proceedings at consistory court and said that any collection above the average would be devoted "to my work of helping my poor little world."

sive presidential activities up to the convention, and to have in hand the issue of the freeing of the far-off Philippine Islands will be voted on tomorrow in the house.

Speaker Garner plans to invoke the clause of the constitution which gives the house the power to impeach, unless the house unanimously consents to taking up the Hare bill, granting independence after eight years, under liberal rules of the democratic controlled branch.

Opposition to the measure, led by Representative Bacon, republican of New York, is expected to force the Texas democrat to recognize Chairman Hare, of the insular affairs committee, for a suspension of the rules. This procedure would require a two-thirds majority vote and casts some doubt as to the outcome. Debate is limited to 40 minutes. No amendments are to be offered and the vote is up or down.

CLASS WAR SHUTS RED AUTO PLANT

"anti-specialist tendencies," which means that there is discrimination against technicians of both the old and new orders of Russia. "Persecution of administration engineers," is another line of attack, but was not explained either in the proclamation or by the press which published it.

The Nizhni-Novgorod plant, erected by American engineers and operated by a company of Cleveland) to turn out light cars, and was hailed in opening ceremonies as the largest of its kind in Europe.

The plant occupies 300,000 square yards, and around it is being built a new city some 14 miles away from the old Nizhni-Novgorod, which formerly had a population of 150,000 and is 255 miles northeast of Moscow on the Volga.

The new city includes 60 four-story apartments and 178 small houses for workers and their families.

The production schedule for the first quarter was concentrated on the manufacture of necessary factory instruments, and contemplated an output of only 700 automobiles. Beginning April 1, the factory was expected to step up production until it reached a scale commensurate with its capacity of 14,000 machines annually, 94,000 of which were to be trucks.

The automobiles were to be made under an arrangement with Henry Ford, which permitted the use of his patents in exchange for orders for a large number of American cars.

There is only one other automobile plant in the country. The comparatively small Auto factory near Moscow. The Nizhni-Novgorod factory was expected to send Russia from 32nd to eighth place in world automobile production.

America not only fearful but exceedingly thoughtful about the success in several states of candidates for delegates to the national convention pledged to Roosevelt and offered to him in answer to those who might think the "people of Massachusetts" to be fooled in voting for the "bosses slate" hiding behind their professed friendship for Alfred E. ## U. S. BUDGET FATE IN SENATE HANDS; SAVINGS SOUGHT fill the senate's order for a 10 per cent cut in the bills providing funds for next year's operations of the interior, state, justice, commerce and labor departments.

Even with these savings, however, Chairman Jones, of the committee, believes little more than $100,000,000 can be cleared away.

Meanwhile, representatives of the many concerns taxed under the house revenue bill are warning in the capitol to make war before the senate finance committee on these levies. A big outcry is certain at the hearing of the senate committee on the standing firm so far behind the house measure on the theory that new taxes must be levied.

There is a possibility that the outcry of the particular businesses taxed may lead to a revival of the general manufacturers' sales tax. But in view of the fact that the house (senate) committee is working on an 11 per cent cut proposal, and strength on the issue likely will be tested before the house concludes with the independent issues annual supply bill, now before it.

A flat 10 per cent cut in all government salaries would mean an expense reduction of $135,000,000. If such a proposal should not muster enough votes to pass, as its opponents expect, one would abolish the Saturday half-day; another would abolish or reduce the 60-day leave with full pay.

Many Suggestions.

The economy committee has received many other suggestions of agencies that could be consolidated or eliminated. It is considering combining the independent radio commission and the radio division of the department of commerce; the steamboat inspection service and the department of commerce; the army transport and service and the international boundary commission.

Another house group—the expenditures committee—already has approved a bill to merge the legislative government building activities under an administrator of public works. It has considered combining all personnel activities, and Chairman Clegg hopes the committee will act favorably on the proposal.

Cochran, however, has not been able to muster enough votes to obtain committee sanction for the Byrns bill, which would join the army and navy in a new department of national defense.

At the same time the appropriations committee is continuing its effort to reduce expenditures under budget estimates. In six it has handled so far, it has suggested appropriations $115,000,000 under what the budget asked.

Of the five remaining, Chairman Byrns hopes to make additional savings. His committee is considering a $30,000,000 cut in the war department bill, while the navy will take a $10,000,000 cut.

Along with consolidations and reduced expenditures, however, the house faces action shortly on the $2,200,000,000 plan to pay veterans' compensation benefits in full.

Dr. Davidson asked for the prayers of those concerned in the proceedings at consistory court and said that any collection above the average would be devoted "to my work of helping my poor little world."

DANUBIAN PARLEY WILL BE WIDENED TO WORLD AFFAIR

They were welcomed by Mr. MacDonald and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

The Danubian governments maintain that unless urgent reconstruction measures are taken, another financial storm such as blew out of middle Europe last summer may again sweep the continent with world-wide consequences.

Austria said she might have to resort to restriction of imports. Hungary, on the other hand, urged that no foreign loans by Austria, Hungary, or other Danubian states would threaten to blaze a trail of inflation and repudiation, according to the general consensus of financial experts.

Mr. Tardieu came to London to avert such a crisis by evolving an Anglo-French understanding for the rapid extension of the financial support to the southeast, such as international loans.

The basis of such loans and how they will be made available is the subject of the present Downing street conversations, which will be extended to include Germany and Italy Wednesday.

Newspaper Polls Indicate Accuracy of Digest Figures

Several newspaper check-up polls on prohibition show a close conformity in returns to those of The Literary Digest poll according to a comparison of the balloting tabulations.

In a poll of Iowa by the Des Moines Register, one of the oldest papers in the state, 74,357 votes were returned of which 31,009, or 41.70 per cent, favored "maintaining the present prohibition law," and 43,348, or 58.30 per cent, voted against the amendment.

The latest figures in The Literary Digest poll give a total of 66,965 votes from Iowa. Using the slightly different questions of "continuing" instead of "maintaining," 24,141 Iowans, or 36.06 per cent voted dry in The Digest poll and 42,824, or 63.95 per cent, voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The Des Moines Register deduced from their poll of Iowa that the farms and the cities vote wet, while the small towns vote dry.

In South Bend and Mishawaka, Ind., 35 representatives of the South Bend News Times are making a house-to-house canvass of both cities. One vote of yes or no on the prohibition question is permitted from each home. The ballots are placed in a locked box, which is opened in the presence of a committee of citizens.

NEW OUTBREAKS REPORTED IN CHINA

Fighting Adds to Difficulties Facing Peace Negotiators Today.

SHANGHAI, April 4.—(Monday.)—Clashes of growing intensity between Chinese and Japanese troops along the battle line west of Shanghai were reported today, adding to the difficulties facing negotiators of an armistice who were scheduled to meet again at 2 p. m.

Chinese reports from the area where the Chinese and Japanese forces have been facing each other since the cessation of hostilities here a month ago said skirmishes were occurring frequently, causing increased tension in both armies.

The peace negotiators of China and Japan were said to be "in somewhat closer agreement" when they adjourned over the week-end, but their opposing attitudes on the main issue of troop withdrawals remain unconciliated.

The commissioners sent by the League of Nations to investigate the dispute between China and Japan arrived in Hankow today from Nanking.

WARFARE IN MANCHURIA NEARS SOVIET BORDER

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Manchuria's guerrilla warfare has reached a point not more than 100 miles from Vladivostok, and foreign military observers are speculating as to whether Soviet Russia will remain complacent.

Enemies of Henry Pu-yi, ruler of the new Manchurian state, have extended their activities within a few miles of the Siberian border near Krigen Point, where Manchurian, Korean and Siberian boundaries touch. Japanese and white Russians have been forced to flee from Manchuria into Korea for safety, and Japan is rushing troops across Korea to suppress the Manchurian insurgents.

Moscow had previously complained about the dangers to its territory in this district because of alleged Japanese support to white Russians. Japan denied that it was aiding the anti-Soviet Russians, but the friction apparently was not allayed and Moscow will probably send new protests.

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY MARKS LINDY HUNT

Information of the Lindberghs' departure came at the close of a day of negative police bulletins, which was marked, however, by activity on the part of the Norfolk, Va., intermediaries who have sought to conduct negotiations with the kidnapers.

John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, was absent on a mission on which he embarked yesterday morning. Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrege, retired, an associate, could not be found tonight at his Norfolk home. The third intermediary, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, termed news of Colonel Lindbergh's trip "very interesting," but said he had not heard of it until press dispatches were read to him.

Coincident with these developments came a story of a red amphibian plane, bearing four occupants, visiting Buzzards Bay, three of the men, described as middle aged, came ashore, inhabitants said, and inquired about the whereabouts of a yacht named Sallie. The plane headed away in a westerly direction.

In connection with the absences from the Lindbergh home it also was learned that Betty Grog, nursemaid to the stolen child, made a short automobile trip during the day in company with police and Ollie Wheatley, the Lindbergh butler, and Mrs. Wheatley.

The only positive development in the police search was the arrival in England of Major Charles Schoeffel on a secret mission in connection with the case.

VISITING SEAPLANE EXCITES BAY ISLAND OF 35 FAMILIES.

CUTTYHUNK ISLAND, Mass., April 3.—(AP)—The four telephones on this little Buzzards Bay island of 35 families jingled steadily tonight because of a brief and unexplained visit of an airplane and four occupants shortly before noon.

Neighboring Martha's Vineyard yesterday experienced its first connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping after an unconfirmed rumor that John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., intermediary in the kidnapping, would come there had spread throughout Massachusetts.

Cuttyhunk occupied a similar position tonight because of its unidentified visitors. A Sikorsky plane landed in the water off the island and its three passengers came ashore while the pilot remained aboard the ship.

Some of the inhabitants said the three men, who were described as middle-aged, asked if any one had seen a motor yacht headed easterly in Vineyard sound. They then had lunch and returned to the plane.

Const guard headquarters on the island said tonight that the plane was here two hours. The ship bore the number NC 54D and was believed registered at Bridgeport, Conn. It was red in color but otherwise unidentified.

On its departure the plane flew over the summer home in Martha's Vineyard of William M. H. Schoeffel, former United States senator, and then returned and headed off in a westerly direction.

Some of those who saw the party said that two of the visitors were addressed as "doctor" and "colonel." The same source said none of the visitors resembled Colonel Lindbergh.

The boat about which the party inquired was named Sallie.

MAJOR SCHOEFFEL LANDS AND VANISHES IN FOG

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 3.—(AP)—Major Charles H. Schoeffel, assistant superintendent of the New Jersey state police, who has been active in the search for the kidnapped Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., slipped into England tonight from the liner Mauretania as mysteriously as he left America.

Augusta Watchman Found Killed, Robbed

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—Chiles H. Dunn, 35, for more than 20 years night watchman, was killed at the plant of the Carolina-Georgia Ice and Coal Company sometime early Sunday morning. His body was found at 6 a. m. Sunday, apparently dead several hours. He had been struck over the head with a heavy iron bar.

Dunn was known as fearless man but he was evidently caught unaware. Robbery was clearly the motive. He only had 98 cents in his pocket, though his weekly pay had been given him Saturday night and in addition he had the night receipts of the plant. Police have found no clues.

More Fine Weather Slated for Today

Today will be a repetition of Sunday, as far as the weather is concerned. C. F. von Hermann predicted. High temperature Sunday was 76 degrees and low was 54 degrees, and today's mercury range will be about the same, with increasing cloudiness. Though no rain is expected today, there probably will be light showers Tuesday, it was said.

Holmes Speaks.

Children should not be made to stay for church services after attending Sunday school, the Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes Institute, said Sunday in a lecture at the New Hope A. M. E. church. He asserted that the services were too advanced for young people and they would lose interest if forced to attend a ritual they could not understand.

POLICE IN BERLIN BATTLE RIOTERS

Election Disorders Begin as Decree of Truce for Easter Ends.

BERLIN, April 3.—(AP)—Election fireworks and disorders began in Germany today almost on the stroke of noon when President Von Hindenburg's decree of truce for the Easter period came to an end.

Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, and foremost opponent of the president in the first election on April 10, mounted a rostrum at Leipzig immediately after noon, and declared for law and order before an audience of 50,000.

Speaking for the aged president, Adam Stegerwald, minister of labor in Chancellor Heinrich Brüning's cabinet, spoke at Breslau, declaring that the actions of the Nazis belied their words when they said they sought to obtain power legally.

Disorders occurred in Berlin, in the northern Berlin suburb of Wittenau, and at Chemnitz.

The worst disorders came in Berlin proper, where a group of communists was badly battered in Giesebau Strasse by police who attempted to disperse them. One communist was shot in the chest and four were arrested. In the northern section of the city four Nazis were injured in a fight with communists. Seven Nazis were shot in Unter Den Linden as they shouted, "Hitler, wake up, Germany!" while a police parade was passing by.

At Wittenau six communists and Nazis were arrested in the street row. At Chemnitz, where the communist candidate for president, Ernst Thaelmann, spoke today, one communist and one Nazi suffered bullet wounds.

Although most political commentators were agreed that Hindenburg's 18,654,600 votes against Hitler's 11,341,369 in last month's first election were enough to assure him of victory in the final, both Hitlerites and Hindenburgers were confident today of winning.

The race apparently will be between Hitler, Hindenburg and Thaelmann. Theodore Duesterberg, the steel helmet, having dropped out of the Winter has too small a following to count in a national election.

Hitler followed up his address at Leipzig with three other big meetings at Dresden, Chemnitz and Plauen in "red" Cauchy. Massed adherents noisily welcomed him, and planes bearing Nazi inscriptions circled in the air at each city.

At Leipzig Hitler scored the present regime for "failing to show any positive achievements in 14 years existence."

The former Kaiser's son, August Wilhelm, spoke for the fascists before Hitler. He said the Nazis were not fighting Hindenburg as a man but "the politicians who misused his name for their own nefarious purposes."

Stegerwald objects to the Nazis' attempting to change the constitution by legal means, he said, "but their actions starkly belie their words."

Augusta Watchman Found Killed, Robbed

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—Chiles H. Dunn, 35, for more than 20 years night watchman, was killed at the plant of the Carolina-Georgia Ice and Coal Company sometime early Sunday morning. His body was found at 6 a. m. Sunday, apparently dead several hours. He had been struck over the head with a heavy iron bar.

Dunn was known as fearless man but he was evidently caught unaware. Robbery was clearly the motive. He only had 98 cents in his pocket, though his weekly pay had been given him Saturday night and in addition he had the night receipts of the plant. Police have found no clues.

More Fine Weather Slated for Today

Today will be a repetition of Sunday, as far as the weather is concerned. C. F. von Hermann predicted. High temperature Sunday was 76 degrees and low was 54 degrees, and today's mercury range will be about the same, with increasing cloudiness. Though no rain is expected today, there probably will be light showers Tuesday, it was said.

Holmes Speaks.

Children should not be made to stay for church services after attending Sunday school, the Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes Institute, said Sunday in a lecture at the New Hope A. M. E. church. He asserted that the services were too advanced for young people and they would lose interest if forced to attend a ritual they could not understand.

PETROLEUM RATES REVISED DOWNWARD

New Schedule, Announced by Perry, Will Aid Leading Georgia Ports.

Rates designed to give Savannah and Brunswick a more favorable adjustment in shipping petroleum and petroleum products, including gasoline, and fuel oil, to Georgia ports, have been granted effective April 15, by the Georgia public service commission in order to place the Georgia ports on a competitive basis with other ports in Georgia.

Rates prescribed by the Georgia commission will result in both increases and decreases, but a preponderance of decreases. Perry said. Rates from the refineries in other states were fixed by the interstate commerce commission as the result of an investigation in co-operation with various state commissions over a period of three years. A mileage scale was prescribed to apply to interstate shipments throughout southern territory, but specific rates from New Orleans and Baton Rouge, La., to various points in Georgia were fixed on a basis lower than would result if the mileage scale was applied.

Therefore, said Perry, it was necessary for the Georgia commission to fix rates from Savannah and Brunswick to these same Georgia destinations that would reflect a proper difference between the rates from New Orleans and Savannah and Brunswick.

Rates fixed from Savannah to Georgia points follow:

To	Present Rate	New Rate
Atlanta	36	34
Macon	35	33
Augusta	30.5	28
Waycross	31.5	29
Gainesville	38	36
Valdosta	31.5	30
Athens	36	35
Waycross	31.5	30
Fulton	32.5	31
Waycross	31.5	30
Americus	33.5	33

The following illustration was cited by Perry: Under the present rates the difference in the rate from New Orleans to Atlanta and Savannah to Atlanta is 6 1/2 cents per 100 pounds, whereas under the new rates the rate from New Orleans to Atlanta will be 9 cents lower than the rate from New Orleans to Savannah. The rates fixed by the Georgia commission are maximum rates and it is said in the commission's opinion that carriers may find it necessary to further reduce these rates in certain instances to meet competition of other forms of transportation, which they will be permitted to do.

Rates on crude and fuel oil are to be 80 per cent of the rates prescribed on refined petroleum.

Perry said that the commission does not expect the change in rates on petroleum and petroleum products to have any effect on the local retail prices of gasoline.

ATLANTA CRACKERS HEAR KEY DEFEND BIBLE'S TEACHINGS

Denying any conflict between science and the Bible, Mayor James L. Key Sunday morning launched a new series of Bible lectures to his non-denominational Bible class at the Capitol theater. The new series started with the story of creation and will carry the Bible through to its conclusion during the spring and summer.

"Science and the Bible are both true, and there can be no conflict between truth and truth," Mayor Key asserted. "Apparent conflict that sometimes develops comes from people who do not understand either science or the Bible."

Misunderstanding comes, the mayor said, from trying to make a work of geology or history or biology out of the Bible, a purpose which he said was not intended.

Twenty members of the Atlanta Crackers attended the class in a body, headed by Manager "Red" Barron and Coach Rube Marquard.

"I am coming back next Sunday," Marquard, veteran major league pitcher, told Ben Brooks, president of the class. "I never heard the Bible explained like Mayor Key explains it. He talks straight from the shoulder and a man knows what he means."

MITES FOR CLAUD RAY WILL BE HELD TODAY

STATION L-O-V-E BY CRAIG CARROLL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: When Judy Allison had been in Chicago for six months without finding work her father wired her to return to her small town home. Dismayed by her failure, she went to the tea room in her rooming house. Dick Mason, chief radio announcer at WABC, sat at her table. Impulsively Judy showed Dick her father's telegram. From all the applicants, she was chosen for the "Beauty Builders" program. While Judy was talking with Elton Day, Burdette came up and asked why he had thrown her down "for some new kid from the country." Judy told him she was a trouble-maker. While Judy was rehearsing with Elton, he received a telephone call which greatly disturbed him. Dick Mason carried her to a night club where he introduced her to many celebrities.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Judy, you mustn't take it that way," Judy sat up suddenly, digging at her wet eyes. "And how else could I take it?" "But—" "It means I've been fooling myself all along. It means I've got to tell my folks I'm coming home after all. I've got to go home tomorrow. Nothing to stay in Chicago for. Not now." "Don't you see?" Judy demanded almost fiercely. "I—I told my father I'd stay now because I had a good job. I even wrote to tell them how much I was going to earn. And now I've got to say it with a mischievous grin to let them send me money to get home with." She got up. "Where are you going?" Elsie asked. "To send a telegram. To my father." She went through the coins, the few wrinkled bills in her purse. "Oh, I've got enough. Just enough. Only—" she made herself giggle, and the giggle seemed peculiarly strained. "Only I'll have to wait up. Haven't got enough for a Pullman. So—" She began to take things from the closet. The powder-blue dress. The little blue shoe. She caught at her breath, stood with the dress in her hands, dropped it suddenly, buried her face in her hands. "Judy! Judy! It's not that bad!" Elsie said. And now she put her arm around Judy's shoulders, held her, patting her awkwardly, trying to make her voice soothing. "Nothing in the world's had enough to make you cry like this." "You don't know," Judy insisted. "It—it's the end of everything. I've got to be a failure. And my father's the kind who'll never let me forget it. Oh, he loves me. But he'll never get over saying, 'I told you so.' And he'll take me around and show me off and say I'm home to stay. And I'll be home to stay. I'll never get away again." Elsie, who had not had a home since she could remember, knew the answer to this. The old, pat answer out of the books. "A home must be a pretty good thing to have. It wouldn't be so bad, having folks to go home to. I—" "You don't understand," Judy insisted. "It isn't home that I hate. I love my people and I'd like to be there with them. But, to stay forever. They'll tell me I ought to marry some nice boy there. And play in the church on Sundays, and maybe play in the amateur show. In the First church basement." She squared her shoulders, dug at her eyes with an absurd handkerchief. Going to the dressing table, she picked up her powder puff, dabbed at her face. The hard light of the single globe glared. She wasn't pretty. Not a bit. Just another girl from the country. Just—A new tear appeared in one corner of her left eye. She threw the powder puff on the floor, kicked it viciously, turned around sharply. And saw tears in Elsie's eyes too. "Elsie!" "Ahhh—" "Elsie moved her hand. A funny, heart-breaking, awkward movement." "Elsie, you shouldn't be sorry. It's all right. It's—" Judy squared her shoulders again. "It's all for the best, my dear. Yes, sir. Our little Nell's comin' home again, Sal. You see, the comedy wasn't funny. Not a bit. She gave it up. 'Elsie, it's honestly a lot better. I'd be an awful flop, anyhow, trying to talk on the radio. Don't know how to recite, or act, or talk to people, or anything like it. And couldn't learn. It's not my job.' " "Don't fool yourself, Judy," Elsie said, suddenly like a world-weary woman of knowledge. "There'll be a lot of men crazy about you. Bound to be." "Why—" Judy tried to tell herself it was a silly thing to say. But far away in her mind a voice whispered, "She's right. No use being afraid about it. Two men in one day!" But she said insistently, "That's not so. I know it isn't." "Huh!" Elsie waved eloquently at the mirror. "Give yourself a look, Judy. You'll get mash notes even if they hear you on the radio. And when they see you—Well, what do you think? A girl's got a job all fixed for herself and along comes a better looking girl and—" "I'm not better looking," Judy said. "I'll take the bet!" "Well—" "Along comes a better looking girl," Elsie continued remorsefully, "and right in a minute old man Day forgets all about the other girl and says the job is yours, and he talks to you a lot longer than he needs to, if it's just simply business. Don't you get it? Don't you? Your nice little friend Lona has been working at the studios a lot longer than you have. She pulled some wires and the first thing Day knew he was in wrong. . . . and so you got dropped overboard. That's it." (Copyright, 1932, for The Constitution.) (Continued Tomorrow.)

Big Crowd Gives Rousing Tribute To Work of Philharmonic Group

The Atlanta Philharmonic Society presented a performance in Wesley Memorial auditorium Sunday afternoon—its second concert since its organization last fall—that proved two important things: first, that Atlanta can boast a local organization of amateur musicians, orchestra and chorus, of which any city would be justly proud; second, that Atlanta's interest in local talent is stronger than ever, for in spite of the beautiful spring afternoon and tempting outdoor attractions, between 1,500 and 2,000 Atlantans assembled to give a rousing tribute to the Atlanta Philharmonic Society.

The orchestra opened the program with Haydn's "Symphony in G Major (Surprise)," with Walter Sheets, wielding the baton, commemorating the 200th anniversary of the birth of the famous composer. Throughout the symphony there was an underlying rhythmic and interpretative sympathy that resulted in a reading of the entire score that would have brought credit to an orchestra that treated themselves "professionally." In the "Vivace assai" movement spirit, dash, rhythmic and melodic vigor, with fine blending of instruments and splendid ensemble, prevailed. The familiar "Andante" was gracefully performed, while the "Minuet" captivated the audience with its gaiety and charm. The climax of the symphony was reached in the "Allegro molto" movement, played with joyous abandon, yet always with a feeling for beauty, stirring the audience into warm appreciation.

The Philharmonic string quartet, whose members are Miss Ruth Dabney Smith, first violin; Miss Rose Thompson, second violin; Miss Senta Mueller, viola; and Tom Hutchison, cello, gave praiseworthy performance of the graceful "Minuet" from Mozart's "Quartette, No. 2," arranged by Pochon, and the "Allegro con brio" from Beethoven's "Quartette, Opus 18, No. 6." This group of young players have proved what inspiration and work combined can produce—an ensemble of merit.

The orchestra played three of German's "Henry VIII Dances," "Morris Dance," "Shepherd's Dance," and "Torch Dance," with rollicking, fascinating, sparkling appeal.

The last part of the program was given to a performance by the orchestra and chorus of the grand finale, second scene, second act, of Verdi's "Aida," with Lawrence G. Niles directing in a masterly manner. This finale, in its grandeur, its overpowering climaxes, and its lovely solo parts, firmly carried the audience away in enthusiasm for this worthy organization.

Solo roles were sung by Mrs. Bernice Johnson and Miss Helen Riley, sopranos; Jimmie Glover, tenor; Walter Herbert and R. Holtzclaw, baritone; and N. P. Lee, basso. So great was the appreciation of the audience that the last chorus had to be repeated.

It goes without saying that it is the wish of every loyal citizen that the Atlanta Philharmonic Society may continue in its rapid growth and cultural influence.

Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserve Group Honors Rainbow Club Tonight

The Girl Reserve committee of the Y. W. C. A. will entertain at a supper in honor of the Rainbow Club this evening at 6:30 o'clock, with Mrs. F. J. Henry, chairman of the committee, presiding. The tables in the club dining room will be attractively decorated in spring flowers and ferns and following the supper an interest playlet will be presented by the Girl Reserves from the Decatur Senior High school.

"The Quest of an Understanding Heart" was presented Tuesday morning during assembly at Decatur High school and the industrial girls are anticipating the performance with pleasure. The four characters who are Girl Reserves will be played by Elizabeth Cousins, Genevieve Duke, Nell Honiker and Mary Bob Bennett. Hannah Jones plays the role of peace-maker, while the Spirit of Love is portrayed by Frances Stearns. The nations, Italy, Palestine, Japan, China, United States, South America, Germany and India, will be represented by Frances Stipe, Helen Arnold, Laurene Skelton, Inez Summerour, Frances Bryant, Ellen Johnson, Sara Sandow and Lora Dixon. Ruth Dunnaway will take the role of Industrial Girl.

For the devotional, Dorothy Edmunds, president of the club, will read a poem entitled, "Credo." Mrs. Henry will be assisted in entertaining by the following members of the Girl Reserve committee: Mesdames George Griffin, Bolling Gay and Lewis Menzel.

In addition to the interest groups offered the industrial girls a new class in beauty culture will be directed by Mrs. Frances Jerry, of Rich's beauty shop. Other classes include swimming, tap, etiquette and discussion groups.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

MY DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I want a modern human relations answer to my query and not one based on the old orthodox views of past ages. I have suffered a score of years of marriage. We are now in our roaring forties, my husband and I. Friends used to say of us that we needn't wish to go to heaven, so congenial and happy were we. For the first few years I neglected every outside opportunity for pleasure, staying at home with my babies in the day time and getting out my bag of tricks to entertain my husband in the evening. He had the benefit of association with friends during the hours of business. I had only him and the children to entertain me. One day I awoke to the realization that I was a stale, flat personality. I asserted myself, began to go out and make friends and have them in to my home. That day I broke loose in our lives. I had put him on a pedestal and worshipped him as a god. When I discovered that the seat was too high I put him down and treated him as an ordinary mortal. He couldn't stand it. He has lost his job. We are living on borrowed money. I feel that he has fallen flat.

What can I do to make life endurable for each of us? I cannot love him or chum with him but I can make a business affair of the marriage for the sake of the children. He yells at them and sits like a statue when we have company. He is grouchy and peevish all the time. He formerly lived on the hope of my homage and when it was withdrawn he was a weak man unable to stand alone. Some woman might pamper him to get a living out of him but I am through. I have a faint dream of a little house with my children and my friends about me.

ANSWER:

Now my good woman, peace and happiness do not lie that way, but rather in the opposite direction. I copy this sentence from a book given by an eminent psychologist and psychiatrist to one of his patients. "When a created, simple and eternal soul was the pivotal point God was conformity with the will of the Creator. Evil was rebellion. When the association psychologists substituted a swarm of sensations and images for the soul, Good became pleasure and Evil became pain. If the mind is a system of interests, and if experience is their play, the worth of any experience is a matter of the degree to which the mind, through this experience, attains complete equilibrium."

Do you understand the gist of that? If you do not, you will certainly understand the gist of this that now follows: Running from your duty owed to a defeated, cowed man who is your husband will not give you pleasure, because it is an evil thing to do. Staying by his side and helping him to fight his way back to health and strength will give you pleasure because that is a good thing to do. After all he is your husband.

Speaking from the intensely practical point of view, if there is no other way to do this than by getting out and earning money to help him, then you should consider that plan. It would provide outside interest for you. It would show your husband that the sky is the limit of your willingness to help him and to reinstate him and lift him to his place of lost eminence.

After romance has died love may still linger and after love has fled duty remains. Wifehood, motherhood, involve obligations that do not take account of personal pleasure or personal preference. They involve obligations that are not easily met nor lightly thrown away, "save for one cause only," that cause being recognized by statutes of church and state as warranting divorce or separation.

But, leaving the moral law out of it, leaving the teaching of church out of it, leaving everything out of it but common pity, how could a woman desert a poor, wretched, broken man whom she had once loved, the father of her children, and the victim of circumstances beyond his control? Oh, no, she couldn't. And if she did she would never find the contentment she craves. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Interesting Speakers At Lovett's School.

Among the interesting speakers who have visited Lovett's school recently are Miss Jessie Gay Van Clive, a visiting lecturer at Emory library school, Miss Van Clive, already known to the children from a visit of last year, again gratified her young audience with quaint fairy tales.

At another program a collection of slides on early Georgia history were shown to the children through the courtesy of the Colonial Dames. These were accompanied by interesting explanatory remarks by a member of that society. One highly entertaining program was the moving picture brought to the children by Wiley P. Ballard, the subject was "Animals and Their Habits."

At the last assembly program Thursday the speaker was Ernest Seeman, head of the Duke University Press, and interesting to the children as the father of the 11-year-old author, William Seeman. His talk, made more interesting by his personal contact with the people he talked about, was about the present-day Aladdin who have achieved wonders Aladdin never dreamed of. Edison's marvelous inventions—the airplane. The children were especially interested in his description of the study of birds' wings that led to the perfection of the airship.

Home-Cooked Dinner.

The wives of the members of the finance committee of Wesley Memorial church will serve a home-cooked chicken dinner Tuesday and Wednesday, April 5 and 6, in the clubroom, on the fifth floor of Storch's, 116, 118 and 120 Whitehall street, S. W., at a charge of 35 cents per plate. The public is invited and Mrs. H. M. Simmons and Mrs. W. A. Dodge will be official hostesses.

Miss Buffington Weds Clarence Harrell.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 3.—A marriage of cordial social interest was that of Miss Laura Buffington and Clarence Harrell, which was solemnized at the home of the bride Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. W. T. Buffington, grandfather of the bride, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives.

The bride, a young woman of unusual beauty and charm, was lovely wearing a spring suit of navy blue, with accessories to match. She is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Buffington, of Milner, Mr. Harrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Harrell, of Barnesville, and is a popular young businessman, being connected with the Rawleigh Company. The young couple will make their home in Barnesville.

Ivey—Claxton.

TENNESSEE, Ga., April 3.—A marriage of interest to friends in this section of the state was that of Miss Willie Ivey, of Tennille, and James Claxton, of Kite, which occurred in Sandersville Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Judge Thomas J. Swint in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The bride was reared here and belongs to one of the most prominent families, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Ivey. After her graduation at Brenau she became active in patriotic work and was a charter member of the local D. A. R. chapter.

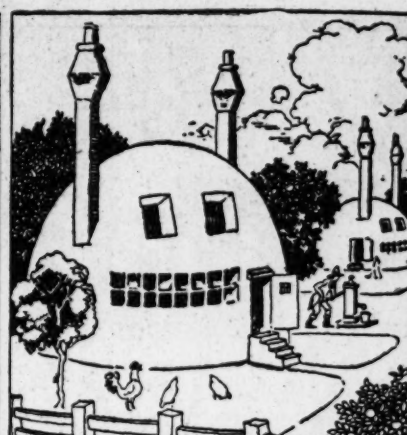

She was specially interested in genealogical research and compiled and published a book which contained the lines of many families in Georgia, Virginia and North Carolina, and she was also instrumental in helping several establish their records for admittance into the D. A. R. organization. Mr. Claxton is a prominent citizen and businessman of Kite, and they will make their home there.

THE WONDERLAND OF OZ No. 1.

In the country of the Gillikens, which is to the north of the land of Oz, lived a youth called Tip. There was more to his name than that, for old Mombi, with whom he lived, often declared that his whole name was Tipperarius but no one could be expected to say all that when just Tip would do. Old Mombi, it must be confessed, was not very kind to Tip. She made him perform many hard tasks and often beat Tip and old Mombi lived in one of the domed-shaped farm houses which are peculiar to the land of Oz. One or two neighbors lived nearby, but as there were no children for many miles, Tip had no playmates. For this reason, Tip did not find life so hard as you might suppose. Like most young boys, he managed to steal time from his tasks to go walking in the woods, to chase rabbits, and to gather hickory nuts in the fall.

One of Tip's most important duties was to milk the four-horned cow which was Mombi's especial pride. Early in the morning, before sunrise, he would go out to the stable to brush and milk the cow. After that he would carry wood for the fire, fetch the water, and finally, after breakfast wash the dishes. Then, old Mombi would set him to work in the fields. But Tip would often slip away from his task to play. Consequently he grew to be a strong and healthy boy.

But despite the fact that life was not as unpleasant for Tip as it might have been, the boy frankly hated old Mombi. His dislike for her was shared by others, too, for the old woman did not enjoy the best of reputations. Her neighbors, the Gillikens people, had reason to suspect her of indulging in magic arts, and therefore both feared her and hesitated to associate with her.

JUNIOR LEAGUE JOTTINGS

BY MRS. HENRY W. GRADY JR.

Scheduled for the Junior League meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club is the election of officers for 1932-33, and excitement is always in the air when this important day arrives. Mrs. Rhodes Haverly, chairman, and Mrs. Lawrence Willet, Mrs. Ralph Paris, Miss Margaret Nelson and Miss Virginia Torrance, who compose the nominating committee, have met during the past month and are ready to announce their candidates for office, selected carefully for each position. However, other nominations are permissible from the floor, and as there are no parties or factions in the league there is every reason why all Junior Leaguers should be well satisfied with the final result.

Mrs. Rhodes Haverly.

At the same time, a delegate to attend the National Junior League conference to be held this year in May at Los Angeles, Cal., must be chosen from among the members of the board of directors, and the fortunate lady will travel across the continent with the newly elected president as the club delegate.

After the meeting the arts and interests committee plans to have on display an exhibition of members' handicraft, including arts and crafts, needlework and also a model of the Henrietta Eggleston Memorial hospital's buildings and gardens constructed by Mrs. William Huger. Two competent judges will make the awards. Mrs. Harold Bush-Brown for the arts and crafts and Mrs. Sherwood Hurt, for the needlework. Only those articles winning prizes will be sent to Los Angeles, where the national arts and interests exhibition will be a feature of the A. J. L. A. conference. Mrs. Bush-Brown is a noted artist and Mrs. Hurt, a Junior Leaguer, is a designer of children's clothes, and operates under the name of M. M.

Yesterday Miss Clara Tousey arrived in Atlanta and will be the guest of the Junior League until tomorrow church meets with Mrs. J. K. Gwinnett, 3 Rivers road, at 3 o'clock.

$3,750<sup>00</sup> Prize Contest

The Game of Movie-Titles

CLOSES

Here's the Idea of the Game

Name the Titles of 30 Similar Cartoons

Cartoon No. 29

TITLE

The correct title for Cartoon No. 29 can be found in this list: "Secrets of a Secretary," "Under Eighteen," "Squaw Man," "City Streets," "Polly of the Circus," "Tol'able David," "Million Dollar Mystery," "Smiling Lieutenant," "The Public Enemy," "The Rainbow Trail."

THE CARTOON you see above represents or suggests the title of a motion picture. The correct title can be found in the list of motion pictures directly under the cartoon.

In the Game of Movie-Titles there are 30 cartoons similar to this one. Each represents a motion picture and with each one is a list of titles that includes the correct title for that particular cartoon.

Read This: If You Haven't the Details of This Contest..this is something you should know

An absolutely amazing situation exists.

It is a fact that on various occasions more people sent in answers to win prizes totaling $25 than have sent in answers qualified to win $3,750.00 in prizes.

As a result of this situation, you have an unusual opportunity to win $1,000.00 in cash and a $1,250.00 automobile. Select the names of 30 cartoons similar to the one at the left.

For any one who intelligently, determinedly and conscientiously applies himself or herself, winning first prize in this game should be easy.

If you already know the details of this game, and if you already have the complete set of 30 cartoons, do not let anybody or anything stop you from turning in your set of answers. The person who talks you out of entering this game is taking a whole lot of responsibility because that person may be talking you out of prizes amounting to hundreds of dollars. For instance, there are twenty prizes in this feature. These prizes are offered for the best answers to the cartoons. First prize, $1,000.00 in cash plus a $1,250.00 Buick fully equipped—is offered, for the nearest correct title to the 30 cartoons; $500.00 as second prize, for the next best, and so on.

ATEE ADVOCATES RAIL "EQUALITY"

President of Pennsylvania Claims Carrier Can't Enjoy Full Prosperity.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—An opportunity to "participate more equitably in the country's prosperity" is asked for the railroads by General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Corporation, in its annual report issued today.

The report shows that Pennsylvania, one of the world's largest railroad systems, having assets of $2,170,000,000, had its worst year in 1931 since its emergence from federal operation after the war. The road earned $10,545,000, a decrease of $49,625,000, compared with 1930, equivalent to $1.49 a share on the common stock of $100 par value, against $5.25 a share the year before.

"The unsatisfactory conditions in the railroad industry, while accentuated by the present depression, are due to the fact that during periods of expansion, the railroads have not been permitted, because of inadequate rates, restrictive legislation and subsidized competition, to compete adequately with other industries in the country's prosperity, all of which emphasizes the unsoundness of existing methods of governmental regulation," says General Atterbury.

"Intelligent consideration of the railroad situation should result in such legislative and regulatory relief as will insure to the railroads economic equality of opportunity to engage profitably in any kind of transportation service that will meet the demands of the public."

"A fundamental need in the transportation industry is for co-ordination of existing necessary transportation agencies. The manifest unfair situation in which the railroads find themselves regulated to the smallest detail of their business, while other forms of transportation competing with them, are practically unregulated, should be corrected. The railroads are the fundamental and basic transportation agencies of the country, and all other forms of transportation should be co-ordinated with them to provide the maximum of service."

General Atterbury finds some cheering signs, among them, the voluntary wage cut by railroad labor, the formation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and "another encouraging sign is the helpful attitude indicated by the interstate commerce commission in its recent annual report, wherein it recommended the co-ordination of rail and highway transport. It also recommended that congress place interstate bus transportation under its jurisdiction and has announced that later it will formulate recommendations with respect to motor truck traffic."

A bright spot also stands out in the review of the year's activities. "The demand for service continues to increase," the report says, "and, as announced in previous years, such service has been substituted to a considerable extent for profitable passenger service. The company owns, through one of its subsidiaries, a substantial interest in the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., which company had a profitable year."

The company reports 245,500 stockholders as of December 31, 1931, an increase in the year of 12,000. The company also reports that it cut its operating expenses nearly $75,000,000 in 1931, but gross revenues fell $22,000,000, a decrease of 21.5 per cent. Dividends for the year amounted to $12,674,000. Profit and loss account on December 31 stood at $295,000,000. Current assets totaled $100,000,000. Total liabilities $311,000,000 was cash, or about double current liabilities of $55,246,000.

Taxes and Autos Command Business World's Attention

BY FRANK H. McCONNELL. NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—

The experiment of looking three directions, all at the same time, was tried by business in the week just ended.

It looked toward Detroit for any rays of cheer that might emanate from the automobile industry, as it launched an aggressive sales campaign.

And it made one sweeping effort to see if any of the traditional barometers of industry were scoring headway.

The house of representatives succeeded in passing its tax bill which now goes to the senate, the entire question still hanging fire, but at least one step toward solution. Early reports from Detroit were mildly encouraging and the steel industry, still hunkering for some orders from the motor industry, began to whet its appetite hopefully.

The various barometers of industry were mixed, with electricity output falling off sharply but carloadings showing an encouraging gain, particularly in those classifications which represent the actual shipping of merchandise.

Under the tax bill has passed the acid test of senate scrutiny, and various proposed schedules are debated and probably amended, leading executives say that it is futile to attempt any forecast of probable price changes that will have to be made on their goods to conform. Leaders of some industries which have been chosen to bear a proportionately heavier part of the burden of raising money for the treasury have indicated that they may seek some alterations in the present bill. Nevertheless, the opinion most frequently expressed by industrialists is that increased taxation is mandatory and, except in those specific instances where it is feared that too heavy a burden might kill off all profit, business appears willing to assume the added load without serious complaint.

The Detroit experiment is commanding widespread interest. In effect, the leading figures in the industry have plunged into a springtime selling and production campaign which will involve an added cost of millions of dollars and will place additional men in jobs. If, as they predict, the buying public can be induced to buy new cars, the Detroit experiment will be a success, at least in regard to the heavy burden which it is believed that the whole business machinery may be pulled out of the ruck and put back into operation.

Freight loadings increased in the week ended March 19 by 9,133 cars over the preceding week. Shipments of miscellaneous freight, which is indicative of general manufacturing business activity, gained more than 13,000 cars. Electricity production, which has been running about 6 to 8 per cent under the corresponding weekly levels of 1931, dipped to 10.3 per cent under the corresponding 1931 figure. This dip which was the sharpest reported so far this year, was due in part to the continuing sharp increase during the comparative 1931 week. Retail trade was still quiet although a shade better than the week before.

COTTON GOODS SALES BELOW PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, April 3.—The past week has added little to the constructive side of the market and sales for the first three-quarters of the year have again been below production.

While the figures for the month of March will show sales below production, sales for the first quarter of the year will still show in excess of production because of the extremely heavy buying of January and February.

There is no disputing the fact that consumption was disappointing in March, and the present outlook is that for the first three-quarters of the year it is not likely to come up to the estimate made in December-January when the present plans for regulation of production were considered. For this reason, several important interests are stating that they recommend further production regulation to be based on revised views of consumption.

As compared with the majority of the basic industries of the country, the textile industry seems still to be on an unquestionably high level. Retail trade, though it has been under the influence of unfavorable weather for the last couple of months, has shown in a decided way, the present low buying power of the consumer and, until industry begins to pick up, this is likely to continue to be the case. For instance, in this district department store sales for February showed a decline of 15.7 per cent from the previous year; stocks of general merchandise at the end of the month a decline of 13.9 per cent. Sales of cotton goods showed a drop of 16.5 per cent; stocks at the end of the month a drop of 6.5 per cent. Although Easter trade was not up to usual proportions, some seasonal improvement may be expected in April and May, but the contraction of individual purchasing power is likely to continue a dominating factor.

When we consider worldwide conditions, we must realize that no single feature has as much bearing as conditions in the United States. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has reached the conclusion that the United States consumes one-half of all the basic commodities produced in the world, excluding rice. There are many commodities in which our proportion is much more than one-half. We consume three-quarters of the world's raw rubber and about one-third of the crude rubber. We consume half of the tin and coffee. Consequently, if we are depressed, it is impossible for the rest of the world to be prosperous.—HUNTER & CO.

Culbertson on Contract Give Your Partner His Full Raise

BY ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

One principle of the Forcing System is Approach bidding. Where your partner has opened with one spade, you have another suit, you should bid it. This is the principle of the building up of the bid, you will show him that suit next. By means of the Approach method, the maximum degree of information is exchanged between partners. The final bid arrived at (if the bidding is accurate) will thus be that declaration which best suits the combined hands.

But in cases where you can support your partner's major suit, the Approach method—the step-by-step advance towards the final declaration—is obviously not called for. In such a case as this, you must tell your partner, as simply and as shortly as possible, how much support you can give him. For this there are three excellent reasons.

In the first place, your partner may have a minimum bid, and, in the absence of precise information from you, may not himself be able to go any further. If then you merely raise his initial bid of one heart to two hearts, when you have the material to bid three or more, a possible exchange may easily "go West." I can not say how often I have seen this happen. The initial declarer shows his heart suit; his partner bids two hearts to show that the suggested suit is favorable from his point of view, but fails to indicate how much support he can give. The bidding just gets out through this fatal lack of precision.

In the second place, by giving the full raise at once, you give valuable negative as well as positive information. You not only show that your partner's suit is the selected suit (trumps) is worth so much, but you also show it is not worth any more. Your partner thus knows exactly where he stands. Any commitments further than those entered into by you, he must undertake on his own responsibility.

Finally, the principle of the maximum Raise will often enable you to force your adversary by what is, in fact, a Preemptive bid. You raise the contract, at one stroke, to a point at which neither adversary can interfere with you, although their combined hands may be very powerful.

Here is a good example of a hand which exactly illustrates this last point:

Both sides vulnerable:

♥ Q 7 5 3
♦ A 6 5 3
♣ A Q 7 6

♠ 10 9 8 6
♥ N
♦ W
♣ E

♠ K J 7
♥ A 3 2
♦ 10 6
♣ K 10 8 9

♠ S
♥ Q
♦ A K J 8 4 3
♣ J 2

♠ 10 4 3

With both sides vulnerable and no score, South dealt and bid one heart; West passed; North, not appreciating the importance of giving all raises at once, bid two hearts. East overcalled with two spades. South went to three hearts and West bid four spades. North now bid five hearts, but it was too late. North and South were beyond their depth. They had to lose one spade, one diamond and one club. North, with 6-1-2 supporting tricks, should have immediately raised the heart contract to game. It is highly improbable that East, holding only 1-2 honor tricks and vulnerable, would have ventured to four spades, but the opponent is unable to learn the perfect fit of their hands, slipping from their grasp. North, with 6-1-2 supporting-tricks, should not bid five hearts, as to do so might jeopardize the game. The optional Raise should be held in reserve, to be used only in case partner rebids or opponents overcall, and North decides that the chance of making five is greater than exacting a small penalty.

TODAY'S POINTER Example of the "Bust" Two Notrump.

Opening Hand Resp'd'g Hand
♠ A K J 5 3 ♠ 6 4
♥ A K Q 4 ♥ 10 6 5 3
♦ A 10 9 ♦ 8 7 5 4
♣ 4 ♣ 9 6 2

The Bidding:

Opening Hand Resp'd'g Hand
2♠ 2NT
3♠ 4♥

Declarer has 5 honor-tricks, distributed between three suits, and a 5-4-3-1 distribution. Partner's "bust" two notrump shows his hand may be void of honor-tricks. Declarer, however, now shows his second suit, and this time his partner, with four trumps, can support him. Four hearts will probably be made.

Tomorrow's Hand.
The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ K 7 6 4

♣ K J 3

♠ A 8 2
♥ K Q J 8 6
♦ 10 9

Study the hand, decide how you would bid it and then compare the results with those shown in tomorrow's article.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES STRONG IN BOND MARKET

BY VICTOR EIBANK.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—United States government issues, which have been the feature of the bond market during the past week, most of them recording higher prices daily, while corporate mortgages displayed an unmistakable declining trend.

Although firmness was maintained by all of the federal, the Liberty 4-28, wholly tax exempt, were the leading performers. These bonds reached a new high for the year under heavy accumulation. The general popularity of the Liberty and Treasury issues was attributed to the fact that while it was conceded the national budget would be balanced, unusually high taxes were a certainty.

At the same time the tax situation in congressional circles, received as to just what would bear the brunt of the new burdens, had an unsettling effect on various domestic loan categories. The results were elsewhere in the utility division, especially among preferred stocks, some of which lost more than a dozen points.

A rise in Gulf featured the oils, which on the whole were helped by continued firmness in crude of which it is a large producer. Some doubt

CURB BEARS CENTER DRIVES ON UTILITIES

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—The curb market is struggling through a period of discouragement which has been intensified by a bearish speculative attitude toward its most active group of stocks, the utilities.

Prices found the going heavy during most of last week. Liquidation of long holdings, nervousness selling and the unfavorable character of business news, as well as uncertainties over national taxation, provided sufficient pressure to push quotations into lower ground, with production of electricity reported as more than 10 per cent below last year, the question of power company earnings, which stood up well in 1931, received consideration and doubtless figured in the selling.

Electric Bond & Share issues again had to absorb large offerings, but there were sharp declines elsewhere in the utility division, especially among preferred stocks, some of which lost more than a dozen points.

A rise in Gulf featured the oils, which on the whole were helped by continued firmness in crude of which it is a large producer. Some doubt had been expressed as to the durability of this stronger price structure, but the market appeared to believe that the new schedule had at least a fair chance of success.

Harris Approaches Complete Recovery

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Senator Harris, of Georgia, was pronounced in "very excellent" condition today by his physician, who said he should be able to leave his home in "about another week."

The Georgia senator, whose recovery from a recent operation for a bladder ailment was retarded by a relapse, was permitted to sit up in a chair tomorrow. The doctor said his appetite was better. He was gaining strength and receiving visiting colleagues. The intestinal condition which caused the relapse, the physician said, "has cleared up pretty well."

QUARTER'S BUSINESS SHOWS AN INCREASE

Paul G. Hornbuckle, president of the Gate City Mattress Company, of 625 Edgewood avenue, reports that its business for the first three months of this year was very much better than for the corresponding three months last year.

"We attribute this to three factors," says Mr. Hornbuckle, "the first one is the law of supply and demand, lower prices, and the splendid aid of our satisfied customers. We analyze these three factors like this—no matter if people will put off having their mattresses made over when they first know the work should be done, the hard uncomfortable bed reminds them every night that the same old uncomfortable bed will not be better to sleep on until it is made over and made right."

Then again most people who sleep for months on an old, smelly, soiled, or lumpy mattress will all of a sudden realize that the loss of one good night's rest is worth more to them than the small amount we charge to remake an old uncomfortable mattress into a clean, comfortable one.

"The new low, reduced price we can renovate a mattress for is due in a great measure to the additional new equipment we have recently installed which enables us to greatly increase our output and render quicker service than ever. This equips our bed ticking manufacturers' good co-operation and lower prices upon all their fine grades of the latest weaves and patterns in ticking."

"The third reason is that over 95 per cent of our customers are women and when we return a very old, soiled or ragged looking mattress back as a nice soft, downy, sweet-smelling one with a beautiful fancy or standard ticking on it, then the women in their pride of having such a nice mattress in place of the old one we received at her home, when showing it to her neighbors, will tell them we did the work. And after all, there is no better way to increase our business year after year than have satisfied customers telling their friends about the service we can render them."

Then again, continued Mr. Hornbuckle, "we are doing a much larger amount of inner-spring work, and especially since we began using the celebrated Nachmann inner steel coil springs, these springs are lighter, and so flexible they can be rolled up. They are durable and enable us to make up a beautiful spring filled mattress out of any ordinary mattress we bring in. Then, too, there is considerable satisfaction upon our part to know that nowadays through the aid of improved equipment and steam sterilizing we can make an ordinary mattress that probably cost $6 or $7 several years ago into a felted spring filled mattress that will correspond in look and feel to the higher-priced new mattresses."

"Our slogan is 'Invest in Rest,'" concluded Mr. Hornbuckle. "As it is a good fact that average persons spend near one-third their life in bed, why not do it in comfort? Then get up refreshed as nature requires to meet the day's many tiresome tasks and pleasures. May we receive your phone call over our Jackson No. 3861 in regard to the very low price we can make you now and the quick service we can render you?"

MILLER RENEWS PLEA FOR TORNADO VICTIMS

Alabama Governor Asks Funds To Help Storm Sufferers.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 3.—Making a second appeal for donations for relief of the homeless and injured, Governor B. M. Miller today announced that Red Cross figures showed 270 killed in Alabama in the tornadoes of March 21, which struck a score of towns and communities in the state.

In a letter to Governor Miller, C. H. McFarland, assistant director of the Red Cross in Alabama, said: "The most complete statistical picture yet available indicates that 270 persons were killed; 1,807 injured; 2,641 families affected. There were 988 homes destroyed and 816 other buildings destroyed; 1,446 homes were damaged and 935 other buildings damaged; 6,929 persons have been or are being fed. We estimate that 3,853 individuals will require food during the next two weeks."

McFarland estimated needs of the state at $250,000, of which $50,000 has been given by the National Red Cross and he estimated state contributions at $40,000.

Crew of Three Sought After Barge Founders

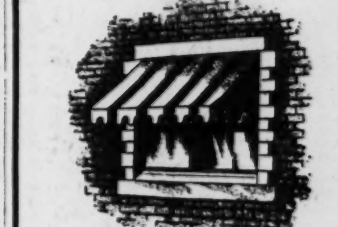

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Search was being made today for the crew of three men of the barge Salem, which sank without warning last night near Brigantine Shoal, off Atlantic City, N. J.

The men were reported by the crew of the large being towed directly behind the Salem to have escaped in a lifeboat and made for shore. But no word has come from them and search by the shore by men from coast guard stations has revealed no trace of a lifeboat.

The Salem was on its way here from Richmond, Va., with a heavy cargo of piling. It was in tow of the tug Nassau.

At about 11 p. m., about seven and a half miles north of Brigantine, the barge began to settle rapidly. The crew of the Tuckahoe, the barge being towed behind it, seized axes and hacked through the heavy hawser holding the barges together.

CONCERN OVER TAXES AGAIN HURTS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—(AP)—The cotton market was again on the downgrade during the past week with fairly active trading. The decline carried prices at the lowest, 47 to 49 cents under the close of the preceding week, to new low levels for the present calendar year. A slight rally at the end of the period cut the net down to 38 to 40 points, or about $2 a bale.

The main cause of the further decline was the uneasiness and nervousness created by the tax bill controversy and the threat of a soldiers' bonus measure. This affected the stock market principally but reacted to a considerable extent on cotton. There was also an absence of support owing to the lowering of limits on buying orders under the market or the withdrawal altogether.
